April 1, 2020

Secretary
U.S. Department of the Treasury
1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20220

Dear Secretary Mnuchin:

I respectfully write to encourage the Treasury Department to provide guidance to U.S. governors that ensures that the Coronavirus Relief Fund is distributed in a timely manner to cities with a population of more than 50,000 and ensures that smaller communities are not left behind.

Last week, Congress passed and the President signed Public Law 116-136, the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act. This legislation establishes the $150 billion Coronavirus Relief Fund, which will help State and local authorities cover the direct costs associated with the response to this public health emergency.

Unfortunately, the CARES Act includes language that defines the minimal level of local government as a population of 500,000. In many states, not a single city meets this population threshold, and without clear direction from Treasury funds could be caught in a bureaucratic nightmare. As governors focus on state-wide priorities, it is critical that Mayors have the resources to provide real-time support for communities on the frontlines of this unprecedented pandemic.

In particular, the Department should provide governors with guidance to ensure the fair and expedited distribution of funds to cities and struggling communities. This guidance should include direction for creating equity for high population growth areas. Treasury should model the distribution of Coronavirus Relief Funds with existing federal grant distribution models that ensure that no community or city is left alone in serving residents who are desperate for relief.

As always, I appreciate your service and prompt attention to this important matter. Time is of the essence, and we must ensure that critical funding reaches those most in need.

Sincerely,

Raúl M. Grijalva
Member of Congress
